Storm Eunice may cause disruption due to heavy snow and some strong winds on Friday.

What to expect

- There is a chance of travel delays on roads, possibly with stranded vehicles and passengers, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel
- There is a slight chance that some rural communities could be temporarily cut off
- There is a small chance that power cuts will occur and other services, such as mobile phone coverage, may be affected

Further details

Snow on the northern flank of Storm Eunice is now expected to ease during Friday with snow mostly limited to higher elevations above 250 m over Northern Ireland and southern Scotland. A further 1-3 cm of snow is possible in places here but the majority of snow has already fallen.

Over northern Scotland snow is likely to fall to 100-150 m at times with 5 cm or so in places, perhaps particularly in Grampian whilst above around 300 m there is a chance of 10-20 cm of snow accumulating. Strong winds occurring at the same time may lead to very poor visibility, blizzard conditions and drifting of lying snow.

Very low likelihood of medium impacts
